Dear Mr. Anderson,

RE: Disability Program on Radio2000

I would like to, on behalf of the South African National Council for the Blind (Council), congratulate you on the excellent disability programme that you host in the mornings.

The disability sector has been marginalised for too long now, but thanks to programmes like yours, many people with disabilities have finally found the courage to speak out in public on their capabilities.

Your programme has helped many disability organisations too. Council, for example, has gained valuable information from many of your listeners who have contacted us. We are grateful for being allowed to advertise vacancies on your radio station – this is one of the ways that we have been able to find employment for a number of visually impaired job-seekers. We have also been fortunate enough to educate listeners on issues pertaining to the visually impaired sector. Knowledge is power, and you have helped us to empower many visually impaired individuals.

It is true that radio is still the best medium available for reaching the visually impaired community. We commend your excellent work at the station.

Council salutes you, and Radio2000, for taking an interest in the disability community. I hope that we can build a prosperous working relationship so that we can reach our common goal of empowering this often marginalised community.

Thank you.

Kind regards,

Andre Manders
